Introduktion

Companions, be happy, be happy.
We're in the promised land,
Where the more you work, the less you earn.
This is that charming spot,
Fountain of all pleasure, sea of all glory,
Filled with every delight.
Here with no care of jealousy nor dubious rival
The lovers and the beloved enjoy their love.
Let each of us be quick and happy,
Let us lend hand to the instruments
To make pleasure for them and play and sing some dances.

1. Il Bell' Humore

I want to live happily without any sorrow, La la.
You can cease, Love, to shoot arrows at my heart
Spend your piercing darts that seem not fragile
I prize you little or naught and I mock you.
Without any worry I rejoice in true pleasure, La la.
Nor can you with your tortures disturb my joy
Hide, too, your face for it neither burns nor undoes me
I fear your fire not at all and I mock you.

2. Caccia d'Amore

Your speeding Nymphs, flee, O Nymphs, Fa la.
If you flee not, swift and ardent
Love who is now going hunting, Fa la,
Will strike your heart, Fa la.
He carries darts arming his left side, Fa la.
And with his fire he conquers every soul.
See the cruel archer, Fa la,
How haughtily he advances, Fa la.

3. La Bellezza

Beautiful Myrtle you surpass the sun in light
And with one ray kindle a thousand hearts.
Who for evermore is sparked with your fire
Can always live happy, Fa la.

With your careless glances you bring now life, now death,
Nor can one shield himself from your great power.
Whoever seeks to flee tarries too long
And suffers your burning rays, Fa la.

12. L'Innamorata

To a joyous life Love invites us, Fa la.
Whoever desires joy, if he loves sincerely,
Will give his heart to such a lord, Fa la.

Now is the joyous time, dispelling all woes, Fa la.
For the time we have left let us live in revelry,
And let us honour such a lord, Fa la.
